Jersey City Housing Authority Board of Commissioners Confirms Jersey City Resident and Public Housing Professional, Marvin Walton, As Executive Director

Walton Has Held Leadership Positions at Three of Nation's Largest Housing Authorities

JERSEY CITY - Mayor Steven M. Fulop announced today that the Board of Commissioners of the Jersey City Housing Authority has confirmed Marvin Walton, a Jersey City resident and public housing professional with 13 years of leadership experience at three of the nation's largest housing authorities, as the agency's new executive director.

Mr. Walton, who was confirmed by a vote of 5-0 on Wednesday night, will assume the role of executive director on April 27th, 2015 with a salary of $177,000 -- the same salary as his predecessor Maria Maio, who in 2014 was tapped by the Obama Administration to lead the U.S. Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Field Office in Newark. The selection of Mr. Walton was made after a thorough national search process.

Since taking office, Mayor Fulop has placed an emphasis on building affordable housing in all wards, establishing Jersey City's first Affordable Housing Trust Fund policy that sets a criteria for and incentivizes the development of affordable housing throughout Jersey City, particularly in areas where affordable housing has been under developed.

"We are pleased to welcome Marvin Walton as the new executive director for the Housing Authority, where he will bring years of knowledge and experience," said Mayor Fulop. "Marvin's selection highlights the type of leadership we are building across city departments and agencies. We look forward to working together with Marvin and his team at the Housing Authority to expand affordable housing opportunities for all Jersey City residents."

For the past six years, Mr. Walton has served in leadership roles at the Newark Housing Authority, the largest housing authority in New Jersey and the eleventh largest in the nation, with a portfolio of 44 public housing communities and a total of over 8,000 rental units. He has served as the Deputy Executive Director for the past four years and previously served as Chief Financial Officer.

Prior to his tenure in Newark, Mr. Walton served as the Deputy Executive Director and Chief of Staff of the Housing Authority of the County of Cook, the second largest housing authority in the state of Illinois, which serves over 15,000 families. He also served as the Chief Information Officer and Budget Director for the Chicago Housing Authority, the third-largest housing authority in the nation, serving more than 20,000 families on a $1 billion budget.

“I am excited to begin my tenure serving the people of Jersey City and the Jersey City Housing Authority and to join one of the most dynamic communities in the nation,” said Mr. Walton. “The Jersey City Housing Authority is at the forefront of public housing revitalization and I look forward to adding to that story as the Fulop administration expands housing opportunities throughout the city.”

About the Jersey City Housing Authority:

The Jersey City Housing Authority is New Jersey’s second largest public housing authority, serving approximately 6,500 low-income households and over 16,000 residents, including seniors and the disabled. The JCHA has been lauded as a champion of quality life enhancements and crime reduction initiatives, energy efficiency and green building practices, policies promoting Section 3 hiring, and an impeccable track record of revitalizing distressed public housing. In addition, for the last six consecutive years after implementing several reforms to ensure the success of its Section 8/Housing Choice Vouchers program, the JCHA notched the six highest HUD SEMAP performance scores in the agency’s history and in four of those years, the highest score in the state among similarly-sized municipal public housing authorities.

A leader in the provision of low-income housing and services, the JCHA’s sterling history of revitalizing distressed neighborhoods has included the receipt of three federal HOPE VI Revitalization Grants, which have transformed blighted barracks-style and high-rise “vertical concentrations of poverty” at Curries Woods, Lafayette Gardens, and A. Harry Moore Apartments into energy-efficient, privately managed, architecturally distinguished mixed-income communities, providing social and supportive services and attracting low, moderate, and market-rate residents. Through HOPE VI, the JCHA has created over 1,040 new mixed-income rental units.
