Jersey City Mayor Steven Fulop and Director of Public Safety James Shea to Swear In 15 New Police Officers as Fulop Administration Continues to Grow the Jersey City Police Department

WHAT: Mayor Fulop will swear in 15 new Jersey City police officers bringing the size of the department to 856 total officers. This is the sixth class of police officers hired since Fulop took office. The graduating class of officers reflects not only Mayor Fulop's commitment to expanding the size of the Jersey City Police Department, but also its diversity: Officers to be sworn in on Wednesday include 8 Hispanic officers and three African-American officers. Since taking office, Mayor Fulop has hired 166 new police officers, and another 22 officers are currently in the police academy expected to graduate this summer.

WHEN: Wednesday, June 15th at 11 a.m.

WHERE: Council Chambers, City Hall
280 Grove Street, Jersey City, NJ

WHO: Jersey City Mayor Steven M. Fulop
Director of Public Safety James Shea
Jersey City Chief of Police Philip Zacche
Graduating Officers
