Mayor Fulop, City Council, and Members of the Muslim Community to Celebrate Iftar Dinner at City Hall to Mark Holy Month of Ramadan

Iftar Dinner, Held at Sunset, Marks the End of the Daily Fast Observed by Devout Muslims During the Month of Ramadan

What: Mayor Steven M. Fulop, members of the Jersey City Municipal Council, and several hundred members of the Jersey City Muslim community will come together to mark the holy month of Ramadan and celebrate at an Iftar Dinner at City Hall. The event will be open to the public, and will begin with a speaking program, followed by prayer and the breaking of the fast.

Jersey City has one of the most diverse populations of any mid-sized city in the country. The Muslim community represents nationalities from around the world and the Iftar dinner is an opportunity for people of all backgrounds to break the fast together. In addition to the Imams who will attend the event, the program will also feature clergy from other faiths and places of worship throughout Jersey City.

When: Thursday, June 16th, 2016 at 7:30p.m.

Where: City Hall, 280 Grove St, Jersey City

Who: Jersey City Mayor Steven M. Fulop
Jersey City Municipal Council members
Members of the Muslim & interfaith community
